VILAS RAPS MR. GORMAN.

Speaking as the Personal and Political Friend of Mr. Cleveland.

PRESIDENT AGAIN DEFENDED.

The Senate Smiles as the Speaker Pays His Tribute to Mr. Hill.

QUAY WITHDRAWS AMENDMENTS.

Vilas Is Also to Recede from His Motion as to the Duty on Sugar.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—In the Senate at 2 o'clock to-day Mr. Jones called up the conference report on the Tariff bill. Mr. Vilas (Dem., Wis.) was immediately recognized, but yielded to Mr. Quay (Rep., Pa.), who withdrew the sugar amendments he offered just before ad journment last night.

Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) suggested the absence of a quorum, and the absenters came trooping in in response to the sum-mons of the electric bells.

There was a general air of expecof importance was about to occur.

Mr. Brice (Dem., Ohio) came in and held a whispered consultation with Mr. Vilas. It was expected that the Ohio Senator would make a statement before Mr. Vilas proceeded, but he did not President Needs No Defense.

For such a man he saw fit to say ome words-not in defense (he needed some words—not in defense (he needed none), but some correction of a discoloration of facts by which Mr. Cleveland had been placed in a false light before the country. He would make this statement in behalf of the truth of history. "What were the points of accusation," inquired Mr. Villas, "In the remarkable assault to which I have alluded?"
Mr. Villas regretted, he said, that Mr. Gorman was absent from the Senate Chamber.

Chamber.

The first accusation, he proceeded, was that the President was open to the charge of duplicity. That was based upon a letter in which Mr. Cleveland expressed the hope that from and coal should go on the free list in the Tariff bill. The second was that the Executive had by that encroached on the prerogatives of Congress, and, fiird, that the President had traduced the Senate. Those charges were true or false, not as a matter of argument, but as a matter of fact.

"With regard to coal and fron ore let us examine the facts," said Mr. Vilas. "And I desire to say here that I am under deep obligation to the Senator from New York, who never in his public career made such an able exposition of any subject as he did on Tuesday last."

This tribute to Senator Hill caused a suspicion of a smile on the faces of many in the chamber.

Mr. Vilas then reviewed at length the President's position in favor of free raw materials, his letter of 1857, and other public utterances up to his message to Congress at the opening of the present session.

Cleveland's Constancy.

Constantly, Mr. Villas declared, Mr. Cleveland had insisted upon this principle. It was everywhere proclaimed by his authoriers to be the first step in the enfranchisement of upor from the thraidom of unjust taxation. Could it be pessible, he asked, that any one supposed he had abundoned the principle that lay at the base of any scheme of tariff reform?

what was the proof adduced in support of this alloged change of heart?
Mr. Gorman himself had no personal testimony to offer the called on Mr. Vest, who offered conversation hearsay testimony that would have been excluded in any court of justice. He had no personal testimony.

The distinguished Senator from Arkan-

Base of Gorman's Charges.

With regard to those two amendments, upon which the specifications of Mr. Gorman's charge had been founded, the testimony of Mr. Jones was clear that the President, whenever coal and from were mentioned, expressed the hope that they would go on the free list. Was there any one desirous of doing open and free justice to the President, who, after reading Mr. Jones's own statement, would not say that Mr. Cleveland had never faltered in his urgent demand for free coal and free iron ore?

The President knew, too, each House would have a voice, and, therefore, not with duplicity, but with the openpess and boldness that always characterized him, Mr. Cleveland had expressed to the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee the hope that the result he desired should be accomplished in conference. He had a right to say it after his conversation as detailed by Senator Jones; he had a right to insist and urge it by any proper means.

SITUATION IN PULLMAN.

Strikers Hope for the Withdrawal of the Troops.

(By Associated Press.) CHICAGO, July 26 .- As long as the employees are suffered to live in their homes with rent unpaid and to have food supplied daily by the Relief Committee they are prepared to keep up the contest, they say, for six years. It is rumored that the Company will close down next January or March for reorganization and begin a wholesale eviction. The strikers want the soldiers withdrawn, and would regard that step as indicating that the Company had as indicating that the Company had abundonedd all hope of getting sufficient force to open up the works.

The theory that troops were to be withdrawn was given color by Mayor Hopkins's visit to Puliman last night. The Mayor expressed himself as unwilling that the milita should stay and do nothing at an expense of $9,490 a day. The Company's policy will probably be defermined at the coming regular annual meeting of directors and stockholders. Mayor Hopkins and Vice-President Wickes will meet in Chicago to-day and discuss the withdrawal of the milita. If the Puliman works do not start up by Saturday the troops will be withdrawn at that time.
